

Isn't there anything you can do about the ridiculous statements made by "news" channels? Fox News is especially exemplative. Yesterday a newscaster said: "A farmer shot down an Apache helicopter with an AK-47, which are about as common as pencils over there." The night before: "A huge chemical weapons plant was destroyed." Hold on there. Chemical weapons? No, it was a chemical plant. They could have been making laundry detergent. And what about a couple of weeks ago when we were all supposed to buy plastic wrap and duct tape for our windows? CNN messes up too. These channels don't check their sources and the unquestioning masses are inculcated with fear. Children can watch this drivel all day long. I hope I'm complaining to the right people. Thank you.